Te Aorerekura Outcomes and Measurement Framework (2023-2028)

This Framework defines shared outcomes to support collective impact to eliminate family violence and sexual violence, and sets out how to measure progress and ensure accountability across government for delivering Te Aorerekura

All people in Aotearoa New Zealand are thriving; their wellbeing is enhanced and sustained because they are safe and supported to live their lives free from family violence and sexual violence

Moemoea

Improved levels of toiora and wellbeing	Reduced prevalence of family violence and sexual violence
Toiora and wellbeing will be measured through the existing data	Decreases in the levels of family violence and sexual violence and abuse
in Treasury's Living Standards Framework to avoid duplicating	for everyone including decreased experiences of:      physical violence     sexual abuse and assault     neglect of children     psychological abuse Decreased family violence, sexual violence and abuse towards children work already underway across government.	and young people including decreased experiences of those forms of violence already listed.

Different population groups and communities need to be reflected in the data

This Framework uses existing data and identifies data improvements to better reflect the experiences and priorities of people who are disproportionately impacted by family violence and sexual violence: women, children and young people, tangata whenua, Pacific peoples, disabled people, older people, LGBTQIA+ communities, and ethnic communities.

To measure and understand progress, this Framework will be used alongside other forms of information including voices of victim-survivors and whānau, tangata whenua and community data, evaluations, and practice knowledge. Data used for reporting will align with data standards, including the purpose of data collection.

Shifts	Towards strength based wellbeing	Towards mobilised communities	Towards skilled culturally competent, sustainable workforces	Towards increased investment in primary prevention	Towards safe, accessible, and integrated responses	Towards increased capacity for healing
Outcomes, Measure Now indicators and Data sources	<ul> <li>1. Government agencies' family violence and sexual violence approaches are strength-based and contribute to wellbeing</li> <li>Improved use of strength-based approaches in government responses - Agency reporting on new initiatives (2024)</li> <li>Less harm by government agencies toward people, whānau &amp; families</li> <li>- Agency experience data and Community Voice information (2024)</li> </ul>	2. Tangata whenua, communities, and specialist sectors lead effective family violence and sexual violence approaches and share knowledge Improved trust and relationships in the sectors - Workforce Pulse survey (2024) More recognition of tangata whenua, communities' and specialist sectors' needs and priorities in government approaches - Workforce Pulse survey (2024) Improved tangata whenua and community leadership to eliminate family violence and sexual violence -	<ul> <li>3. Government and specialist sectors have safe, competent, responsive, and sustainable workforces</li> <li>Improved consistency of knowledge, skill, and capability across all workforces - Workforce Pulse survey (2024)</li> <li>Improved responsiveness to tangata whenua and diverse communities - Workforce Pulse survey (2024)</li> <li>4. Families, whānau, friends and other networks safely provide help and support</li> <li>Improved understanding by families, whānau, friends and other</li> </ul>	<ul> <li>5. People, whānau and families have safe and respectful relationships</li> <li>Improved support for whānau and caregivers - New Zealand Health survey (2023)</li> <li>Improved understanding of, and behaviours that reflect consent, rights, and respect - ACC Social Norms survey (2024)</li> <li>6. Positive gender, social and cultural norms prevent family violence and sexual violence</li> <li>Less tolerance for the use of family violence and sexual violence - Gender Norms survey and ACC Social Norms survey (2024)</li> </ul>	<ul> <li>7. Responses to family violence and sexual violence are effective and equitable</li> <li>Improved integration between government, tangata whenua, communities and the sectors - Community Voice information (2024)</li> <li>More people, whānau and families can access effective tailored services and supports - Community Voice information (2024)</li> <li>8. People, whānau and families impacted by family violence and sexual violence get help early and are safe and supported</li> <li>More people, whānau</li> </ul>	<ul> <li>10. People, whānau and families are supported to heal and recover in ways that work best for them</li> <li>More people, whānau and families can access a range of effective healing responses across their life course - No data source currently, to be developed</li> <li>11. People, whānau and families are free from shame, stigma, silencing and discrimination</li> <li>More family, whānau and community conversations that contribute to better healing, prevention, and responses - ACC Social Norms survey (2024)</li> </ul>

More people, whānau

Workforce Pulse survey (2024)	networks - ACC Social Norms survey (2024)	and families can access effective services and supports - MSD administrative data (2023) 9. People who use violence are held accountable and supported to change their behaviour
		More people who use or have used violence can access effective services and supports - Corrections administrative data (2023)

Learning and monitoring

12. Improved quality and use of information to support evidence-based practice, policy, and investment decisions

More guality information, developed in partnership with tangata whenua, communities and the sectors, strengthens practice, monitoring and evidence-based decision-making - Workforce Pulse survey (2024)